Friday 21st April Fishmongers' Recital Hall

The Britten Building: From Concept to Completion Daniel Pedley

Daniel Pedley is an Associate Architect at LSI and has been involved with the design and delivery of both the Britten Building and the Oakeley refurbishment, as well as having recently worked on projects ranging from a football stadium to buildings for the Sheringham Shoal Wind Farm. He will draw on a number of the different consultant roles that have coordinated their design knowledge and expertise to take the Britten Building project from Concept to Completion, including architects, engineers, environmental consultants, acousticians and contractors.

Friday 28th April Fishmongers' Recital Hall

The geopolitics of sustainability science; confronting global environmental governance in a radical way Prof Tim O'Riordan

Professor Tim O'Riordan, Emeritus Professor of Environmental Sciences at the University of East Anglia, is actively involved in research addressing the themes associated with better governance for sustainability. He is also active in the evolution of sustainability science partnerships. His direct work relates to designing future coastlines in East Anglia in England and in Portugal, so that they are ready for sea level rise and the creation of sound economies and societies for a sustainable future.

Friday 5th May Auden Theatre

Self-esteem and body image

Natasha Devon

Natasha is a campaigner, writer and TV pundit. She has co-authored a number of best-selling books, writes regularly for the Guardian, Telegraph, and Cosmopolitan, and is a columnist for the Times Educational Supplement. She is a mental health and body image expert for Sky News and Good Morning Britain, and was one of the body confidence mentors for the Channel 4 series Gok's Teens: The Naked Truth. Tash works alongside the All Parties Parliamentary Group on body image, specifically reporting on the issues faced by 14-18 year olds. She also advises politicians on mental health policy in education.

Friday 12th May Big School

Sir John Gresham

Charlotte Crawley & Simon Kinder

Among the portraits of former heads that adorn the walls of Big School is one labelled as Sir John Gresham. Join art historian Charlotte Crawley as she shares the journey from first identifying that the man in this painting cannot be Sir John all the way to finding the real portrait, culminating in the unveiling of a newly commissioned reproduction. She will be assisted by Simon Kinder in telling the story of the man behind the portrait and the founding of the School.

Friday 19th May Britten Building

Extended Essay Symposium

At this early stage of the process, the Lower Sixth pupils undertaking an Extended Essay will have the chance to describe the thinking behind their projects and give an account of the work they plan to do. With over 40 Essays in progress covering every subject imaginable, there is sure to be a topic that will be of interest.

Friday 16th—Sunday 18th June Auden Theatre

Norfolk Festival of Nature at Gresham's

This year's Festival reflects the theme of 'Wildlife in Nature' and will take place in and around the Auden Theatre from Friday 16 June to Sunday 18 June.

The Festival kicks off on Friday evening with those well known TV presenters Martin Hughes-Games and Iolo Williams and their informative and amusing Wildlife Road Trip. The remaining weekend's events include a Nature Trail for children, storytelling in the woods, an on-stage discussion on Field Sports (with the opportunity for you to submit questions and join the debate!), and a fabulous falconry display and talk about these majestic birds.

For keen wildlife photographers and any young people who enjoy putting pen to paper there is a chance to have your work exhibited in the Auden Foyer through the Festival Competitions.

For full details, contact the Auden Theatre Box Office on 01263 713444 or visit their website at www.audentheatre.co.uk.

Lectures begin at 6.00pm
