

MR KINDER AT GRESHAM'S
Head of History

Whether bedecked in hippy wig and tie-dye, sporting beret and Che Guevara T-shirt, or sleeping rough with tutees for Shelter, every pupil – without exaggeration – has their favourite memory of Simon Kinder when they leave Gresham's. Many will plump for his lectures on the school's infamous spies or, more recently, the 115th anniversary tributes to Greshamians fallen in World War I, delivered over the course of four years in Chapel. Asked to comment, his reply was characteristically modest: 'Gresham's students are an inspiration.'
