

The Bruce-Lockhart Fund

Remembering Logie

Logie Bruce-Lockhart was one of the most prominent and influential Headmasters in the long and rich history of Gresham's School. His 27 years at Gresham's are testament to that. However, it is much more than just time that displays his impact at the School: his attention to detail; his wide-ranging talents and the support and leadership he showed pupils and members of staff. This meant he left a lasting impression on so many who crossed his path (including those in Provence and Blakeney during succeeding years!).

Former pupils, members of staff and parents frequently attest to the crucially important influence which Logie had on them. More often than not he would see the potential in a young person to thrive at Gresham's and, should financial support be required in order to send their child to the School, he would do all that he could to ensure bursarial-based support was afforded to families that needed it. Many Old Greshamians (OGs) will recount how Logie was the reason why they came to the School; the opportunity was presented to them because of his, and the School's, generosity and vision.

It can safely be said that Logie Bruce-Lockhart lived a truly remarkable life – upon reading his biography, it would appear as though he lived numerous lives in one. Amongst many other values, what was particularly evident about Logie (before, during and after his time at Gresham's) was his commitment to supporting the many causes that were close to his heart and in the communities in which he resided, and providing opportunities for young people so that they might thrive at school and in later life – an ethos that remains at the heart of Gresham's.

The School will forever be grateful for Logie Bruce-Lockhart's legacy and the great part that he played in making Gresham's what it is today.

“ Logie Bruce-Lockhart had an idyllic childhood: supportive, intelligent parents, competitive siblings to encourage him and excellent teachers. He was a natural scholar who seized every opportunity given to him. He and his brothers survived the War. He knew how privileged and fortunate he was, so he gave back wherever, whenever and however he could. Helping pupils brought him great happiness.”

– Fiona Bruce-Lockhart (GH '75)

“ He had an eye for the 'weed by the window' as he used to say, and asked me to join his public speaking class... After I left Gresham's, I bluffed my way to Major General. The greatest contributor to that was Logie, the most wonderful example to me: perceptive, kind, amusing, principled and always fair. He took great care over me and for that I will always be grateful. He was, properly, a real paladin and will stand as one of the greats in the Headmasters' hall of fame.”

– Major General Patrick Marriott CB, CBE, DL (F '76)

Honouring Logie

On top of the many other ways in which Gresham's will be honouring Logie Bruce-Lockhart, and upon in-depth discussions with the Bruce-Lockhart family, an endowment fund has been set up that will in perpetuity provide young people with the opportunity to come to the School as Bruce-Lockhart Scholars.

The Bruce Lockhart-Fund

The Gresham's Foundation Bursary Fund will continue to provide a vital stream of funding in support of the School's bursary provision. It is a restricted fund that provides both immediate support for bursaries and on an annual basis.

The Bruce-Lockhart Fund will provide means tested scholarship support at Gresham's, in perpetuity. It is the first endowment fund of its kind sitting within the Foundation. The ambition is to grow a substantial fund that will have a significant impact on the School's ability to underpin its commitment to widening access and expand upon its growing bursary provision; it will support a growing number of young individuals who require financial support in order to attend Gresham's.

Creating such an endowment will allow the School to plan ahead with confidence, knowing that every year financial support can be awarded to young people irrespective of the many challenges that the private educational sector may face or the ever-changing economic climate and its impact on individuals and families. It will complement the existing Bursary Fund that so many members of the Gresham's community so generously support and which currently helps fund over 100 bursaries in the Senior School every year.

Fittingly, a fund of this nature will simultaneously acknowledge and recognise Logie's influence on OGs by forever awarding means tested scholarships in his honour.

“ ...what is [so] important is that we should teach people how to get the best out of life and how to give their best to it... To be happy one needs the maximum number of interests; a habit of accepting discipline; a real pleasure in work; an appreciation of the beauty of the world; an unselfish ideal; a taste of success and a sense of humour. If we do not learn these things at school, we may never do so.”

– Logie Bruce-Lockhart, first Speech Day address, summer term 1956

Bruce-Lockhart Scholarships

The School plans to welcome the first cohort of Bruce-Lockhart Scholars in September 2023; this will be thanks to those of you who have generously supported the Bruce-Lockhart Fund.

Scholarships will be awarded to young people who show talent or potential in specific fields or areas of School life, whether academically, in sport or in the arts; they will be means tested and awarded where there is a demonstrable need. The decision of who are awarded prestigious Bruce-Lockhart Scholarships will, ultimately, be at the Head's discretion.

Pupils can expect a sense of pride and responsibility upon becoming a Bruce-Lockhart Scholar. Much like other scholarship support at Gresham's, it is expected that Bruce-Lockhart Scholars will make the very most of what Gresham's has to offer, lead by example and show a high level of commitment throughout their time at the School. Once these pupils leave Gresham's they will join an ever growing cohort of former recipients who benefited from the Scholarship, which will only add to the life-long association that they already have with the School.

“ Gresham's strengthened my independence and enhanced many of my skills. It provided me with a platform to push beyond my comfort zone and learn new things about myself and the world. In particular, studying at Gresham's harnessed my admiration for the subject of History. Gresham's has formed indelible memories and experiences that are a major part of who I am today.”

– Elliot McBean-Willis (H' 20)

The Bruce-Lockhart Fund – targets and impact

The short-term and immediate aim for the endowment is to grow it to a size that will enable two scholars to enter the Senior School in 2023 and be supported throughout their time at Gresham's. This would require the fund to stand at approximately £400,000 by the start of Michaelmas Term 2022, which is a significant amount of funding being sought. This will in turn afford the School the time to successfully admit pupils and award them with Bruce-Lockhart Scholarships for entry in September 2023.

Looking further ahead, the goal is to have two Bruce-Lockhart Scholars in every year of the Senior School by September 2026 – another very ambitious target to which the School aspires.

Simply put, the number of Bruce-Lockhart Scholarships that the School will be able to award is dependent upon the ongoing generosity of the Gresham's community and the size of the Bruce-Lockhart Fund.

Requesting your support

The School and Trustees of the Gresham's Foundation are very aware that a request for significant support by September 2022 is asking a great deal, not least at a time where there remains a degree of uncertainty and anxiety in the world. However, please know that any support you offer, whether as a single or recurring gift, will be carefully invested and make that tangibly important difference. Your support will help to ensure the School achieves its charitable objectives, and young people will benefit from a Gresham's education for generations to come.

It is the School's hope that a great number of OGs, many in the wider Gresham's and North Norfolk community who knew Logie or were grateful for the impact that he had on them – and those who see real value in securing the future of bursarial and scholarship based support at Gresham's – will gift their support to the Bruce-Lockhart Fund.

“ Everyone talks about the proverbial door being kept open, but what happens to children who find it locked or, through some dire misfortune, have it slammed in their faces? Surely it is a privilege to open it and hold it wide. Our father helped so many pupils who would have fallen by the wayside through financial hardship. This is an opportunity to give generously and reap the rewards: knowing you have helped generations of future children achieve their potential.”

Tax efficient giving in the UK

- Gift Aid
 - The Gresham's Foundation is able to reclaim basic rate tax (20%) on any donations that you make. So for every £1 a UK taxpayer donates, 25p in reclaimed tax is added, meaning a £100 donation to the Foundation is worth £125.
 - You can also reclaim any additional tax that you have paid in your annual tax return if you are a higher rate taxpayer.
 - Further information can be found at www.gov.uk/donating-to-charity/gift-aid
- Share giving
 - A particularly tax efficient way of giving to a charity. Gifts of shares are subject to relief of both income tax and capital gains tax.

Tax efficient giving in the US

- The BSUF is a charitable organisation and all gifts to them are fully tax deductible. More information can be found at bsuf.org

Tax efficient giving around the world

- We would ask that you kindly explore whether there are organisations and services in your country that can accept and transfer donations to the Foundation on your behalf and which allow you to receive tax relief on your support.

“ The teacher must turn and twist and struggle to find the key which will unlock each child's dedication and enthusiasm, and having found some first signs of potential hang on to them like a bulldog.”
