

MAJOR OUTDOOR SCULPTURE EXHIBITION IN HOLT

Lee Grandjean 'Weights & Measures', woodland exhibition at Gresham's School 8th - 29th November

The woodland amphitheatre at Gresham's School in Holt will be transformed this week as a cast of more than 20 mythic beings inhabit the stage, wings and stepped seats in an ambitious exhibition by Royal College of Arts sculptor, Lee Grandjean. The project, 'Weights & Measures', is the first of its kind to be hosted at The Theatre in the Woods and will be free for visitors between the 8th and 29th November 2013. Artist Lee Grandjean has created a series of new works for this site-specific exhibition. His work is created using junk and garbage reformed into primitive, mythic forms rendered in comic-book pinks, yellows and blues. Visitors to the exhibition are invited to move among the pieces, following their gaze or interacting with them as they appear together in this theatrical outdoor exhibition.

For Grandjean, the 'open, undulating landscape' of Norfolk is an important inspiration. The Theatre in the Woods was first constructed in 1907 and then rebuilt by the students of the school after World War II in 1949. Since then it has been used privately by the school and its pupils until its recent debut as a venue for Holt Festival. This is the first time the venue has been used as a site for a visual arts exhibition open free to the public.

Lee Grandjean, lives in Reepham and has recently exhibited his work as part of the 'From the Deep Woods' exhibition at Sainsbury Centre for Visual Arts. The exhibition opens at 6.00pm on the evening of Friday 8th November when visitors are invited to attend a stage-lit event among the trees at the Theatre in the Woods at Gresham's School, Cromer Road, Holt, NR25 6EA.
